

Career Development

Overview

Knowing where you want to go with your career is not something that most people think about until they are forced to do so. Unfortunately, this can often be at difficult or stressful times. The following workshop is designed to put you in charge of your career by taking you through a series of practical tasks to stimulate your thinking and reflection. As a result you will have the tools and techniques to continue to finalise a career plan, particularly if it impacts on 'important others' in your life.

Content

The half day workshop will explore the following questions and key areas;

- Exploring your hopes and dreams?
- Lessons learned about your career so far?
- What are your motivators and de-motivators?
- Conducting a personal SWOT?
- When are you 'in the zone'?
- Achieving my goals?

Outcomes

At the completion of this course participants will have commenced the process of exploring their future career and have developed a skeletal plan that can be further developed in their own time

Who should attend?

If you are unsure regarding your career, have reached a cross roads or are looking to have your ideas challenged then this is the workshop for you.

Benefits to you and your organisation

At the very least those attending the workshop will have invested a half day of dedicated time exploring their career thus far, identifying future pathways and identifying further questions that will need to be considered privately as well as with the input of 'important others'. This process will mean that attendees are well positioned to pursue opportunities that arise that will lead them to their desired career goals. The course will also provide benefits for the supporting organisation as those attending will be clearer regarding their goals, understand those factors that motivate them at work and hence appreciate where they can best contribute to organisational performance.

Testimonial:

"I can confidently identify future pathways and I feel that this course has opened by eyes up to what my future can hold"- 19 November 2016
